

A Brothers' Story

Dive into the journey of two energetic brothers as they explore Fusion Camp together.

“Both brothers are very engaged and a joy to have on camp. They have both made a noticeable addition to the children at Thurnscoe camp.”

Tom Horton, Inclusion Officer at Active Fusion

Both brothers shared a passion for staying active, but during holidays, they sought an alternative to electronic devices to maintain their routines. Mum's agreement to send them to camp marked a significant opportunity, particularly for Sidney, who had previously missed out due to funding constraints. With Stanley's prior positive experience at Thurnscoe camp, the decision was made, and both brothers eagerly anticipated their time at Fusion Camp.

Stanley, already familiar with the camp environment, relished the support and variety of activities offered. From football to dodgeball, he found joy in exploring new sports alongside peers from the Barnsley community. On the other hand, Sidney, a newcomer to camp, revelled in the freedom to engage in activities like swimming and football, as well as exploring the community centre's amenities.

Throughout their stay, both brothers felt secure and engaged, thanks to the guidance of Active Fusion's coaches. Stanley appreciated their support, which bolstered his confidence and enthusiasm for participation. Similarly, Sidney found the coaches' playful approach helpful to his growth as a team player, particularly under the mentorship of coaches Tom and Freya.

The camp's diverse range of activities, including dodgeball, archery, goalball, and table tennis, encouraged exploration and inclusivity among attendees. External experts from A1 MultiSport facilitated inclusion games, fostering a sense of belonging for all participants. Stanley and Sidney relished the opportunity to socialise with new peers, enhancing their overall camp experience.

Stanley's increased confidence and eagerness to engage in games and competitions showcased the transformative impact of the camp on his demeanour. Similarly, Sidney's newfound humour and ability to uplift others through laughter highlighted his growth and development. Both brothers emerged as delightful and dynamic additions to the camp, leaving a lasting impression on their coaches and peers alike.

Sidney and Stanley's journey at Fusion Camp exemplifies the profound impact of structured physical activity and supportive environments on children's well-being. Their shared sentiment of happiness and amazement reflects the success of the camp in fostering personal growth, social interaction, and a love for sports and outdoor activities. As they bid farewell to camp, the coaches eagerly anticipate their return, knowing that their experiences have left an indelible mark on their lives.
